To the Class of 1980:

"What kind of doctor do you want?", I asked.

"Give me a well trained doctor, give me a doctor who reads. And a doctor who feels for his patient. This one will talk to people, and in plain words. And he will listen. He will not be hurried. He will identify with the patient."

"He has the personal touch."

"He will explain, gently and slowly, and over and over if necessary. He will share his patient's discomfort, he will know his patient's fears, and he will feel his pain."

For the past four years, a number of the members of the faculty and administration of our college have attempted to impart to you an orientation to patient care such that described above. For, as it exists in the broad sense, this orientation to the care of the whole person is the nexus of the osteopathic philosophy of treatment.

The osteopathic profession in 1980 faces a never before realized acceptance in the world of health care. The successful attempts to remove barriers to sharing of medical information by those who have preceeded you was not done in an effort to negate osteopathic distinctiveness; rather, it was an effort to develop the highest possible level of osteopathic care. And the subsequent interchange between the professions of osteopathic and allopathic medicine has been a fruitful one.

I have stressed repeatedly that our "affluence," in the sense of public and professional acceptance, should not serve as the source of the destruction of our professional integrity.

"Osteopathic care" is not simply osteopathic manipulative therapy. It is a philosophic approach to patient care that implies an ever present awareness that the osteopathic physician is treating the whole person.

This is the philosophy of care that has brought us to our present level of success. Our future, as a profession, is dependent upon you — and whether or not, and in what manner, you demonstrate this philosophy in your professional career.

I wish to congratulate you upon this achievement, of which you should be so justifiably proud. I also congratulate your families, who I know share in your pride and have contributed greatly to your success.

And most of all, I wish you well. We have been privileged and proud to have you as our students and I know that we will be proud of you as our graduates.

God bless each of you.

Dear Class of 1980:

The most rewarding experience for the Board of Trustees comes to us each year on that Sunday afternoon in early June — that exquisite moment — when each member of our graduating class walks to the stage of the Academy of Music — to accept, at the hand of President Rowland, the degree of Doctor of Osteopathy.

The members of the Board of Trustees — ever involved and absorbed in the most intimate activities of Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine, have as one of their principal functions, the duty of approving each candidate for this degree.

Imagine then our great pleasure and delight as we watch each graduate — walking proud and tall in the glowing excitement of this greatest achievement — becoming an Osteopathic Physician.

We know that we have approved for this degree not only a learned doctor but, as a graduate of PCOM, we know that we have produced and approved a complete and whole person — a concerned and involved American — a humanistic citizen — and a capably productive member of the community.

Ours is a responsibility, however, that does not terminate on the day of your graduation. We are sensitively planning, together with the faculty, staff, and administration — greater technological innovations — graduate seminars — creative medical advances — and improved physical facilities in both the school and the hospital.

We want you to share these ambitious plans — and we urge your continued interest, involvement and affiliation.

Remember that we retain an everlasting concern for your future welfare and success.

You are now members of the Osteopathic family — hearty welcome — and congratulations.

Sincerely Yours,

J. Sydney Hoffman

CONGRATULATIONS, CLASS OF 1980!!

Thank you for the privilege of extending to your distinguished class my congratulations and greetings on behalf of the Faculty and Educational Administration.

You have achieved your goal . . . to become osteopathic physicians. You have successfully completed a most rigorous and intense program of osteopathic medical education, and have demonstrated your ability and earned the privilege and right to be called OSTEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN.

We have seen you grow and mature. Continued growth is inherent in being a physician. You have mastered an abundance of knowledge in these last four years. Medical education will continue throughout your career, including postdoctoral programs and continuing medical education, as you continue to enhance your skills and knowledge and apply these to the art of practice.

D.O. (Doctor of Osteopathy) also stands for "DO-er". Become leaders in the profession and the community. Become involved. Be innovative, and be determined to help shape your own future destinies. You are entering the profession at a period of new challenges. Be proud of being an osteopathic physician. Do your part to make this fine profession even greater.

Be proud of your College. PCOM ranks in the top ten of all colleges of medicine (both schools of the healing arts) and is the largest osteopathic college. Faculty and facilities continue to grow. Programs are expanding. Remember the dedicated people who made your education possible. Support your college, and fulfill your obligations to future generations of physicians. We are here to serve you as alumni and colleagues. Visit us frequently and take advantage of the CME and other programs we offer the profession. We value your comments and evaluation of your education, and of future students as you participate in the near future in preceptorships, staff of osteopathic hospitals, and other avenues of ducation. This will prove helpful as we assess achievement of goals and objectives. We hope some of you will be interested in joining the College Faculty, and that many will become PCOM hospital staff members.

I marvel at the growth and maturity of your class. You have demonstrated that the promise observed by the Admissions Committee was well founded. You have integrated the basic and clinical sciences with the skill and art of practice, and demonstrated able patient care.

It has been our privilege to work with you. Do not hesitate to call us for assistance in the future. PCOM and the Dean's Office are here to serve you.

On behalf of the Faculty, all the members of the Educational Administration and our PCOM team, I extend hearty best wishes to each one. May God bless you.

Sincerely,

Robert W. England, D.O.

hippocratic oath

I swear by Apollo the physician and Aesculapius and Hygeia and Panacea and all the gods and goddesses that according to my ability and judgment:

I will keep this oath and this stipulation — to reckon him who taught me this Art equally dear to me as my parents; to share my substance with him and relieve his necessities if required; to look upon his offspring in the same footing as my own brothers and to teach them this Art if they shall wish to learn it.

Without fee or stipulation and that by precept, lecture, and every other mode of instruction, I will impart a knowledge of the Art to my own sons, and those of my teachers, and to disciples bound by a stipulation and oath.

According to the law of medicine but to none others, I will follow the system of regimen which according to my ability and judgment I consider, For the benefit of my patients and abstain from whatever is deleterious and mischievous. I will give no deadly medicine to any one if asked nor suggest any such counsel and in like manner I will not give to a woman a pessary to produce abortion.

With purity and with holiness I will pass my life and practice my art. I will not cut persons laboring under the stone, but will leave this to be done by men who are practioners of this work. Into whatever houses I enter, I will go into them for the benefit of the sick, and I will abstain from every voluntary act of mischief and corruption. And further from the seduction of females or males, of freemen and slaves. Whatever in connection with my professional practice or not in connection with it, I see or hear in the life of men which ought not to be spoken of abroad, I will not divulge as reckoning that all such should be kept secret.

While I continue to keep this oath unviolated, may it be granted to me to enjoy life and the practice of the Art respected by all men in all times! But should I trespass and violate this Oath, may be reverse be my lot!

PHILADELPHIA COLLEGE OF OSTEOPATHIC MEDICINE

MENS ET MANUS

I do hereby affirm my loyalty to the profession I am about to enter.

I will be mindful always of my great responsibility to preserve the health and life of my patients, to retain their confidence and respect both as a physician and a friend who will guard their secrets with scrupulous honor and fidelity, to perform faithfully my professional duties, to employ only those recognized methods of treatment consistent with good judgment and with my skill and ability, keeping in mind always nature's laws and the body's inherent capacity for recovery.

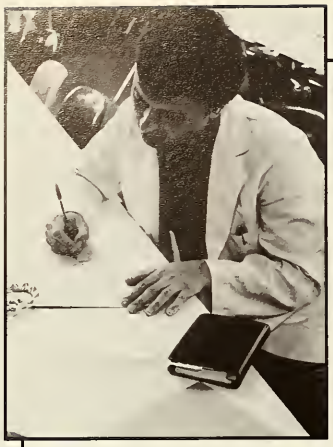
I will be ever vigilant in aiding in the general welfare of the community, sustaining its laws and institutions, not engaging in those practices which will in any way bring shame or discredit upon myself or my profession. I will give no drugs for deadly purposes to any person, though it be asked of me.

I will endeavor to work in accord with my colleagues in a spirit of progressive co-operation, and never by word or by act cast imputations upon them or their rightful practices.

I will look with respect and esteem upon all those who have taught me my art. To my college I will be loyal and strive always for its best interests and for the interests of the students who will come after me. I will be ever alert to further the application of basic biologic truths to the healing arts and to develop the principles of osteopathy which were first enunciated by Andrew Taylor Still.

osteopathic oath

class chairman



The first time we leaf through the yearbook we will have already begun our post-doctoral training. We will be engrossed in an attempt to apply the knowledge and skills derived from medical school. It will be a time of refinement, growth, confidence building, and, perhaps, a few humbling misadventures.

But on another day, at the end of our careers, we may in all likelihood be looking at these pages in a retrospective way, recalling our beginnings, and reflecting on the years between. If we are to be satisfied when we look back upon our lives as physicians I believe there are some questions and issues which we should consider now.

Certainly our patients will be our most prominent recollection. And having spent countless hours of our lives administering to their medical needs it will not be difficult to remember many "interesting cases". But when we recall these therapeutic triumphs will be completely satisfied with the way in which we conducted ourselves? Will we have listened enough? Will we have taken the time to sympathize? Our patients will certainly know the answers to these questions.

If we ask ourselves what kind of profession we would like to look back upon, then it's quite possible that we can play some role in shaping that profession. Like Robert Frost's character we have already chosen "the less traveled road" in medicine by becoming Osteopathic Physicians. Will we, as a minority, have survived on merit or will we have looked to the government for its transient protection? Will we have walked confidently among all teachers and clinicians in an attempt to broaden our knowledge, or will we have promoted and embraced a more comfortable seclusion? Will our profession have demonstrated an awareness that students and education are at the very heart of the matter, choosing quality over quantity in all aspects of training? And as WE attended to our patients will we have taken the time to share our knowledge with students or will we have rushed on to the next patient, preoccupied with the notion that time is money?

Probably the last issue which we will one day have to address relates not to specific aspects of our careers, but rather, to a broader consideration, i.e. Was it worth it? On balance, will the benefits have justified the price that some of us will have paid? For example, regarding economic and professional status, one has to wonder whether this status will have been achieved at the expense of our personal and family lives. I strongly suspect that those among us who are destined to become the happiest and most fulfilled are not necessarily those who eventually acquire the largest practice or achieve the greatest professional and political recognition.

It is obviously much easier to pose rhetorical questions about our future than to provide answers. Each one of us will answer these questions and address these issues in our own time and in our own way.

It is not my intention to make judgments about the past four years at PCOM for that task would have to take into account over 200 individual experiences. Nor is it my intention to discuss the issues regarding loyalty to, and support of, institutions and organizations, for that is also a matter of personal perspectives and values. Suffice it to say that we, as "individuals", are capable of unimaginable achievements, despite all obstacles and restrictions. Only those institutions and organizations which provide an unrestrained atmosphere in which to flourish, and which encourage and support our ambitions, deserve our loyalty and support in return.

What remains is for me to express my gratitude to all of you for allowing me to be your class chairman. It has been a privilege which I treasure. Your cooperation, willingness to contribute, and sense of fairness, have played the major role in class functions. Quite often I was left only with the job of taking the credit for your accomplishments. In the future, in whatever way I can, I will continue to represent your interests.

I wish for all of you the very best that life has to offer.

TO:

1. Those who endured with me:
   the "B's" and the "S's", especially Sell.
2. Those who kept me sane throughout the ordeal:
   the magnificent men of Merlin Hall.
3. Those who gave their love with no strings attached:
   Charlie, Sissy, and Dwight and Babe.
4. Those in my family for their constant support:
   my brother James, and my sister Mary Anne.
5. Those who educated me:
   Johanna, Greta, Mr. T and Dr. Conti.
6. Those who loved me:
   Maria, Bernadette, and Cassandra.
7. Those who gave me life:
   my father William and most importantly my mother who has been steadfast even when I faltered.

This could not have been accomplished alone. I dedicate this degree to all of you.

When you're down and out
And the whole world seems blue
The sky appears to be a cloud
Looking down at you

How can one be happy with a Heart as heavy as gold
Life is what you make it Is what I'm told

Not caring how or where or when You change your mind right there and then
And the sky becomes such a beautiful hue
With the sun a'smilin' down at you

You did it son, all alone Without help from us, you did it on your own.
We never ever knew of the great hidden talent that was really, truly, you.
An insurance man is what we were wishing
But you're going to be the World's greatest physician.
Thank you, dear Lord, in heaven above,
For bestowing our son with Faith, Hope and Love.

I haven't realized it's been 4 years
since I said Thank You For all the things you've done without my ever asking.
When the road got rough and there were all but few
When I stumbled, when I fell, when I looked up, there was always you.
Oh yes, I meant to say so many things
so many times,
But it was midterms and finals, and figuring out rotations.
And on saturday night when I needed
a friend I knew,
Waiting patiently, and ready, there was always you.
Now I'm confident, cool and sitting on top of the world.
I can handle any problem that comes my way.
And when those few times come, when I'm depressed and blue,
I think I'll be alright, Won't there always be you?
Well, if I have to, I can do just fine on my own,
I've gotten this far without any help, haven't I?
I guess I'm just kidding my — self, I know it's true, That the REAL ME depends on knowing there will always be YOU!

Take time to work —
It is the price to success.
Take time to think —
It is the source of power.
Take time to play —
It is the secret to perpetual youth.
Take time to read —
It is the fountain of wisdom.
Take time to be friendly —
It is the road to happiness.
Take time to dream —
It is hitching your wagon to a star.
Take time to love and to be loved —
It is the privilege of the gods.
Take time to look around —
It is too short a day to be selfish.
Take time to laugh —
It is the music of the soul.

To my parents,
who believed in me despite many thankless hours;
To my family,
who kept me strong when the ship was going down;
To my friends,
who walked beside me
and shared my course;
And to the Cast of Thousands,
who helped bring me
to this day!

Finish Whatever You Start
That was said to me 9 years ago, a seemingly easy thing to say,
then, to me, an impossible dream,
though today I have found the way.
The way is a mother who cared & listened,
whether to music when things weren't rough,
or to the stormy clouds that could gather,
each time I'd almost had enough.
The way is a father who loved me, whether arguing a point I couldn't see,
or shopping for an anniversary present, showing off his doctor-to-be.
The way is a family who gathers beside each of us to keep us strong, in times of happiness and joy,
as well as when everything's wrong.
The way is with friends who linger,
when all but family are gone,
to walk beside me and help me,
'cause two hands reach better than one.
Tho' the way also needs belief in oneself,
I know for sure in my heart,
I never could have made it, without each of you who played a part.

"The life of the creative man is led, directed and controlled by boredom. Avoiding boredom is one of our most important purposes. It is also one of the most difficult, because the amusement always has to be newer and on a higher level. So we are on a kind of spiral. The higher you go the narrower the circle. As you go ahead the field of choice becomes more meager, in terms of self-entertainment."

ONE NIGHT, in ancient times, three horsemen were riding across a desert. As they crossed the dry bed of a river, out of the darkness a voice called, "Halt!"
They obeyed. The voice then told them to dismount, pick up a handful of pebbles, put the pebbles in their pockets and remount.
The voice then said, "You have done as I commanded. Tomorrow at sun-up you will be both glad and sorry."
Mystified, the horsemen rode on.
When the sun rose, they reached into their pockets and found that a miracle had happened. The pebbles had been transformed into diamonds, rubies, and other precious stones. They remembered the warning. They were both glad and sorry — glad they had taken some, and sorry they had not taken more . . .
And this is the story of education.

If you have a goal in your life that takes alot of energy That incurs a great deal of interest and that is a challenge to you
You will always look forward to see what the new day brings.

If you find a person your life

Through It All

Through it all you stood beside me . . . not once did you turn away . . . your warm words of understanding . . . indeed were my heart's bouquet . . . when my dreams were cold and faded . . . your sweet smile kindled a flame . . . giving me the faith to journey . . . onward with a steady aim . . . would that words could justly tell of . . . all the things you are to me . . . I could pen a verse so perfect . . . every phrase would rock the sea . . . but mere words can only fashion . . . minute segments of your worth . . . yet to me you are the greatest . . . treasure of earth . . . steadfast as the dawn and sunset . . . with the power to enthrall . . . At this point in the 1980 SYNAPSIS, we wish to recognize and thank all those people who helped make the production of this (now the most expensive ever) yearbook. One question which comes to mind is, "Why did we ever get involved in this monumuntal job in the first place?" We were medical students not the Random House or the New York Times editorial staffs. We cannot answer the question now but maybe in years to come, the answer will become evident. It took many hours of work, many late nights, and many of Mama's pizzas. The job could not have been completed without the unselfish determination of so many people — members of our class, and even those who were not on the role sheets.

To Mark, we are glad Florida could wait a little longer for you. Doris, thanks for the new Synapsis 1980 headquarters, we hope your house is back in order. Honey, you had the experience and know how to keep us on the right track.

Nancy, thanks to your creativity and originality, this year's SYNAPSIS is the most visually expressive yearbook PCOM has ever had — we just want you to know that 100 pennies make a dollar. Mitchell, your contacts in the business and professional world bankrolled this project — the yearbook would never have become what it is without the funds which you solicited. Sorry about the inconvenience commuting from Fort Lauderdale.

To all those who will enjoy the pages of the 1980 SYNAPSIS — we hope the thoughts and events expressed in this yearbook will be an accurate account of our four years at PCOM. And finally, to our classmates — Good luck and good health in your personal and professional lives. Please keep in touch.

Sincerely,

Phillip Ginsberg

On behalf of the Class of 1980, we want to thank the staff of SYNAPSIS for taking on the thankless responsibility for producing a yearbook. The hours put into this endeavor were endless. However, enough praise for the staff. We wish to thank all the people "behind the scenes" without whom this would never of materialized . . . our patrons, supporters, businesses, and well-wishers. The cost to put the finest SYNAPSIS to print was staggering; but as you will see on these following pages, our silent partners came through. We hope maybe one day, we can do something for you. Thank you very much.

Congratulations and best of luck to all our classmates.

Sincerely,

Mitchell Ghen

OSTEOPATHIC HOSPITALS OF DETROIT, INC. BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE....

Osteopathic Hospitals of Detroit, Inc., is now offering a balanced internship program in surgery, internal medicine, neurology, pathology, ob/gyn, pediatrics, emergency medicine, radiology and anesthesiology. We offer residencies in family practice, surgery, ob/gyn, anesthesiology, internal medicine and radiology.

OHDI was founded in 1978 with the merger of Art Centre and Zieger Osteopathic Hospitals, which opened their doors in Detroit in 1944. The new $27.3 million hospital which will replace Zieger and Art Centre—now OHDI's East and West Units—is under construction in Detroit. It will be a 240-bed acute-care facility. The four story building will contain 207,000 square feet.

The first floor will house outpatient, ancillary and support services and administrative offices. The second floor will be devoted to general services, dietary services, medical services and medical education. The top two floors will be for inpatients. The new facility is expected to open in 1982.

Join the Action

If you'd like to get involved fast, then consider joining our medical team . . . we're a fast-growing, 102-bed acute, short-term care hospital. We're beautifully located on the outskirts of Erie, Pa., Pennsylvania's vacationland capital! Present activity makes expansion plans a must, and with that, the need for more good people on our staff.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

WE'RE A MODERN HOSPITAL. LANCASTER OSTEOPATHIC HOSPITAL is a 222-bed facility with 7 surgical suites, 3 obstetrical suites, a 12-bed Intensive/Coronary Care Unit, a 4-bed Renal Dialysis Unit, complete Mobile Intensive Care Unit, and an active, physician-staffed Emergency Room. Our equipment and ancillary services are equal to or surpass any in the area.

WE'RE A TEACHING HOSPITAL. LANCASTER OSTEOPATHIC HOSPITAL is affiliated with the Philadelphia, West Virginia and Texas Colleges of Osteopathic Medicine. We have a Rotating Internship Program and offer Residencies in General Practice, General Surgery, Internal Medicine, Obstetrics/Gynecology, Pathology, Pediatrics, Radiology and Urology.

WE'RE SUPERBLY LOCATED. LANCASTER OSTEOPATHIC HOSPITAL is in the heart of the beautiful Pennsylvania Dutch Country — a progressive industrial and agricultural community offering "The Best of Both Worlds" for you and your family. A socially and culturally vibrant city contrasting with the peaceful Amish lifestyle. Only an hour drive to Philadelphia and a two to three hour drive to New York, Baltimore, Washington, D.C., or the Jersey Shore.

Congratulations, Class of '80, you did it in style
But, you'll have to admit that just for awhile
The going was rough — it wasn't real easy —
Some classes were tough — and your stomach was queasy—
But, you've conquered the mountain
You've all rung the bell
So go on out Doctors!
And make us "sickies" well!
